

THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent family circulation much more than three times as large as that of any other paper, morning or evening, published in Washington. As a News and Advertising Medium it has no competitor.

In order to avoid delays, on account of personal absence, letters to THE STAR should not be addressed to any individual connected with the office, but simply to THE STAR, the Editorial or Business Departments, according to tenor or purpose.

THE STAR BY MAIL.

Persons leaving the city for any period can have The Star mailed to them at any address in the United States or Canada, by ordering it at this office, in person or by letter, or postal card. Terms: 13 cents per week; 25 cents for two weeks, or 50 cents per month. Invariably in advance. Subscribers changing their address from one Post-office to another should give the last address as well as the new one.

One Permit or Many?

Now that the permit-issuing privilege of the chief of police has been restored by the District Commissioners, the small boy and the small boy's parents may celebrate the Fourth of July in accordance with time-honored custom. All that the celebrant needs is a sufficiency of the harmless variety of fireworks and legal permission to turn them loose. This means—from the public standpoint—that everyone is at liberty to destroy all manner of fireworks, save only those that may reasonably be considered dangerous to the official standpoint, it means that responsibility has been transferred to the shoulders of the chief of police, who has practically been directed to issue permits to the thousands who will apply for them before the closing office hour next Friday. The issuing of such a great number of individual permits is really unnecessary: it involves personal application, and a vast quantity of clerical work; policemen will undoubtedly have to be called in from street duty to act as clerks. The better way, the businesslike way, the sensible way, would be for the chief of police to issue a general permit to all the residents of the District of Columbia, specifying, however, that the use of firearms or the explosion of cannon crackers cannot be allowed under any circumstances. Such a proclamation would save an immense amount of labor, and would accomplish all that can be done by the individual permit. As a matter of fact, it will not be possible for policemen to exercise close supervision of affairs as the permit system presupposes. It is not imagined, when there are known to be many thousands of permits in circulation, that policemen will require all persons engaged in the ignition of firecrackers to show lawful credentials for so doing. The permits will, doubtless, be broad enough—no official is going to insist that each child be equipped with a license—why then would it not be much the better way to grant omnibus permission with proper restrictions?

Save the Shade Trees.

Official Philadelphia is engaged just now in a campaign against the caterpillar. In Washington the caterpillar is not being seriously annoyed. If he takes a fancy to any particular tree he rarely suffers any interference in his efforts to secure possession. Absence of funds has prevented any activity by the Park Commission, while only a few householders have taken any real interest in a matter which is of real importance. In Brooklyn there exists and flourishes a society devoted to the slaughter of all tree-defacing insects; membership in the organization insures the welfare of trees and shrubs on and adjacent to the members' premises. Such an association might be possible in this city, if it was started by the right kind of people. The Philadelphia method is, however, the proper one. The trees are municipal property and should therefore be cared for by the municipal authorities. We are without the necessary municipal funds just now so it becomes the duty of private citizens to do what they can in the way of prevention or cure in order that the shade trees of which we are so proud be not rendered useless and repulsive.

A brilliant literary light was extinguished today when Harriet Beecher Stowe went to her reward. Remarkably endowed, she used her talents for great purposes and with marvelous effect. An estimate of the value of her work may not easily be made, but it is a rational assertion to state that "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—which first appeared as a serial in The National Era, published in this city—was one of the most potent of all the anti-slavery forces. Millions of men and women who owe their freedom partly to her pen will join in the mourning consequent upon her decease.

In spite of the work ahead of him this summer, there may be some comfort to Senator Hill in the thought that there will for a long time be no call for him to come forward as the "champion of the administration."

The obstacle to finding a suitable man to represent the democratic party may not have wholly disappeared, but the difficulty about finding somebody to accept the nomination has dwindled very much.

Major McKinley would like to know why Mr. Whitney finds it necessary to go to Chicago for a good gold platform when Mr. Hanna is offering the same article ready-made.

The free and unlimited coinage of political promises will go on unchallenged for several months to come.

A Democratic Quandary.

It is among the political probabilities that gold democrats will bolt the Chicago convention just as silver republicans declared their independence at St. Louis. Up to this time there has been no testimony to the existence of a spirit of compromise in the hearts of the silver democrats who will control the Chicago gathering, so the odds are favorable to a division of the democratic forces, which will most likely result in a two-pronged attack at least as troublesome as that which disturbs the republicans. It does not appear that the gold democrats have as yet decided to bolt; they are discussing the situation and find it difficult to reach a conclusion, because while principle urges them to insist upon sound currency and sound money, they are at the same time and demanding loyalty to democratic doctrine as it is expounded by a majority of the democratic party. In the course of this struggle some of the weaklings will doubtless succumb to numbers and vociferousness, but much the larger percentage of those who are opposed to the silver standard will stand firm, prepared to do what they can toward maintaining the nation's credit, no matter what the names on the ticket which they vote. True men never attempt to compromise with conscience; they refuse to listen to sophistries in which it is insinuated that honesty is not always the best policy. Such men in the democratic party who are convinced that silver monometallism means national disaster are now wondering what they ought to do to assist in preserving, unimpaired, the national financial honor. The problem is one of extreme intricacy. Democrats who have been so because of conviction cannot easily vote an out-and-out republican ticket, even though the republican platform should be altogether satisfactory, nor can they feel satisfied that it is their duty to organize a gold democracy which shall oppose not only the silver democracy but also the republicans; they are anxious to vote practically to gold. Those who are likely to bolt at Chicago would, of course, be pleased with democratic success at the polls, provided that success did not mean a debased currency, but their principal concern is now as to finance without regard to mere party designations; they are anxious and willing to do all within their power to at once advance the cause of democracy and sound money. The puzzle is how to do this. Some who have pondered over the matter do not believe it can be done by putting a gold democratic ticket in the field, the argument being that the election would then almost surely be thrown into the House, and McKinley would be elected. The cause of sound money would be safe enough if that happened, but the democracy would be left. On the other hand, a gold democratic ticket might so divide the believers in good currency as to bring about the election of the silver democrat, in which event the democracy would be a winner but sound-money would be completely knocked out.

If there is not a bolt at Chicago a great many sound-money democrats will be disappointed; they must then either vote for McKinley or stay away from the polls; they cannot vote for free silver; they know that with the democratic bolt is the free coinage hook. If there is a bolt and a gold democratic ticket, will the results be more favorable to the sound-money cause than direct voting for the republican ticket by the small fraction of sound-money democrats who can bring themselves to do so, and abstention from voting by numerous "home-bodies"? This is the main problem to be solved by the sound-money democrats at Chicago.

Cuba's Climate and Cuban Liberty.
Partisan censorship of the press and of press dispatches by Spanish officials has deprived the world of much interesting information as to the situation in Cuba, but enough of the truth leaks out to reveal a deplorable state of affairs on the island. Discussing the state of life in Cuba, the Medical Record says:

"To whichever side of the present deplorable contest in Cuba one's sympathies may incline, no one can contemplate the terrible sacrifice of human life in the island without feeling that the situation is one of the deepest commiseration for the poor victims and those who mourn for them in the mother country. Although the rainy season has not yet begun, the loss of life in the army of occupation is already appalling. According to the reports received by the Marine Hospital Service in Washington, the sanitary inspector in Havana and by the State Department from the United States consuls in Cuba, both yellow fever and malaria are rampant in nearly all the coastal cities and in many of the interior parts of the island. The number of deaths due to them during the past few weeks has been very large, and not less than seven per cent of the Spanish troops were sufferers from them in the first three weeks of May. Of three thousand and eight hundred and seventy-seven deaths in the Spanish army in the island since the beginning of March, no fewer than three thousand and ninety, it is said, were caused by the malarial."

The influences of pestilence upon the campaign have frequently been referred to, but it is not generally understood how potent those influences are. It is stated, upon good authority, that Gen. Weyler himself was frightened back to Havana by the danger of contagion, although he had started out to take command of troops in the field. Yellow fever and smallpox are not, however, the only malarial fevers raging in Cuba; there is a malarial fever of a deadly variety, and it has attacked the Spanish soldiers who defend the trocha which in theory has the Cuban forces separated and keeps them apart. Most of the Spaniards are young men, who are away from their native land for the first time; homesickness and the depression necessarily consequent upon the fearful death-rate have combined to weaken the strongest and to encourage the spread of disease.

It is hoped that the preparations going on in this country for the celebration of the Fourth of July will not call for any disappearing comments from Ambassador Bayard.

Only two hundred and fifty men were employed today on the new city post-office building; so runs the official statement.

SHOOTING STARS.

A Patriotic Episode.
With martial tread the small boys went to the home of the District government. They flaunted flags of defiance there. And cannon crackers they waved in air. And then wide open a casement flew. And a brave Commissioner came to view.

"Shoot, if you must, at home," he said.
"But spare that dangerous old woodshed!"

She Felt Resentful.
"What we want is to have money getting into circulation. It's the duty," he said, excitedly, "of every citizen to exert himself to secure that end."

"John, dear," said his wife, "I'm so glad to hear you say so. I want to order over so many things at the store, but I hesitate about doing it, for fear you wouldn't want to see me coming getting out of your hands into circulation."

Shifted Responsibilities.
Once more vacation pastimes live; They come, those days that youth loves best.

When parents' tasks increase to give The teachers a much-needed rest.

Indignant.
"I try to be philosophical, you know," said Cholly Anglomane, "but I can't help disliking the Chinese."

"They seem to keep to themselves and let other people alone."

"But that's just what they haven't done. They've been making trouble for over a century. First it was tea in Boston, and now, my dove, it's firecrackers all over the country!"

A Friendly Feeling.
"No, suh," said Colonel Carter to the man with small, angry-looking spots on his forehead, "I shall not permit you to abuse the mosquito in my presence. I used to dislike them, but now I am one of the stanchest friends that a mosquito has."

"Still, they annoy one," replied the man with the spots.

"Oh, coo!" But they must live. Why complain because the mosquito stays up all night and has his collations, his songs and his afters-dinner speeches?"

"You seem to feel very kindly toward the brute."

"I have reason to. Let me tell you, suh, that a mosquito once saved the life of a friend of mine. My friend told me the story himself. We were speaking of large mosquitoes, and he said that he once found himself in a prohibition town, where the mosquitoes were larger than any he had ever seen. The party he was with had a bottle, but no corkcraw, and they would have perished with thirst if they had not taken one of these mosquitoes, extracted his bill and used it to get the cork out. That mosquito was a martyr, suh, and ever since that time, suh, I have respected him and all his relations."
